Just over 50% re-offended within 3 years

In 2008, 5,489 individuals (cases) were released from the custody of the Irish Prison Service. Of these, 2,802 (51.0%) re-offended within a three-year period. The re-offending rates (recidivism) differed significantly when considering age, sex and the initial offence for which the offender was imprisoned (imprisonment offence). See tables 1 and 1.1.

Rate comparison 2007 and 2008

The recorded recidivism rate in 2008 was 51.0%, a decrease of 4.3% from the 55.3% recorded in 2007. This fall is also visible, when considering the demographics of offenders. Male re-offending fell from 55.8% to 51.5% between 2007 and 2008 while female re-offending rates fell from 49.7% to 46.2%. See table 1.

A similar pattern of decrease in recidivism rates was observed across all age groups, with the smallest decrease (-0.7%) in the 36-40 year age group.

Recidivism fell in most offence groups between 2007 and 2008. However, rises were observed for groups including Group 10 Controlled Drug Offences where rates rose from 43.8% to 49.0%.

This release is a study of individuals who were released from the custody of the Irish Prison Service in the year 2008 (the 2008 cohort), and their subsequent levels of re-offending (which is termed recidivism, and is based on first subsequent conviction).

Please see the Background Notes for detailed information on how recidivism is defined (certain road traffic offences are not included in the definition); the scope and extent of this study; and how these figures were produced.

Demographic information on releases in 2008

Recidivism was higher for males than females and for younger age groups. Most re-offences occurred within 6 months of release.

Of the 5,489 individuals released in 2008, 90.8% (4,983) were male, over 60% were aged 30 years or less, and a small proportion (4.6%) aged 51 years or greater.

Of released individuals, 15.3% had been imprisoned for Group 13 Public Order and Other Social Code Offences, 13.2% imprisoned for Group 08 Theft and Related Offence and almost 20.1% for Group 14 Road Traffic Offences (NEC). See table 1.

Recidivism by age and sex

Of the 4,983 males released in 2008, 51.5% reoffended within three years, while the corresponding figure for females was 46.2%. See table 1 and figure 1.

Overall, recidivism rates decreased with age. While 56.8% of individuals aged less than 21 years re-offended; the recidivism rate fell to 29.9% for the 51-60 year age category and 23.1% for those aged 61 years and older (though it is important to note that only 65 individuals were in the latter age group).

Initial Imprisonment offence

Recidivism rates differed by initial imprisonment offence. The lowest rates were recorded for Group 02 Sexual Offences (14.9%), and Group 09 Fraud, Deception and Related Offences (30.7%).

The highest rates were recorded for Group 15 Offences against Government, Justice Procedures and Organisation of Crime (68.5%) and Group 13 Public Order and other Social Code Offences (65.4%). See table 1 and figure 2.

Initial Imprisonment offence and re-offence

Of the 2,802 re-offenders, 1,897 (67.7%) committed a first subsequent re-offence either in Group 13 Public Order and Other Social Code Offences, Group 08 Theft and Related Offences or Group 10 Controlled Drug Offences. See table 2.

When considering initial imprisonment offences, and subsequent re-offences, different trends were seen across different offence groups. Of the 549 re-offences where the initial offence was classified under Group 13 Public Order and Other Social Code Offences, 303 (55.2%) of the subsequent re-offences were also classified under Group 13.

Such a relationship between imprisonment offence and subsequent re-offence is not as evident in other groups. For example of re-offenders initially imprisoned for Group 08 Theft and Related Offences, 159(36.1%) re-offended in the same group, while 96 (21.8%) re-offended in Group 13 Public Order and Other Social Code Offences.

Time to re-offence and re-offending rate

Of the 2,802 individuals who re-offended, the great majority (1,809 or 64.6%) did so within the first six months of official release from custody. See table 3 and figure 3.

Background Notes

Introduction This release provides figures for the re-offending rates of those released from the custody of the Irish Prison Service in 2008 (2008 cohort). These figures were produced using a combination of Garda Síochána and Irish Prison Service records, based on the Irish Crime Classification System (ICCS).

The term “offences” in this report refers only to crime incidents known to An Garda Síochána and recorded as such in the Garda PULSE (Police Using Leading Systems Effectively) system. Because of timing issues with respect to the extraction of data, figures may be revised subsequent to this publication.

Data collection The production of these statistics involved the combination of Garda PULSE and Prison PRIS (Prison Computer System) data. Since there is no direct link between the two systems, a statistical matching protocol was devised by the CSO to match Prison and Garda records. For this report, prison orders from 2008 for almost 5,500 individuals were linked from Prison PRIS to their corresponding entries in the Garda PULSE system. Numerous quality control tests were then conducted to verify the accuracy of this matching system, in addition to various consultations with academics specializing in criminology.

Please also note that in this release, the populations for 2007 and 2008 do not include releases for those on remand.

Recidivism/Reoffending For this report, a re-offender is defined as an individual who committed a recorded offence within three years of prison release date; and who is subsequently convicted in court proceedings. For example, if a person is released on December 31st 2008, and committed an offence on the December 30th 2011, they would be considered as having reoffended within three years if the court proceedings lead to a conviction.

Offences such as minor road traffic offences are not included in the definition of recidivism, which is a change from the previous year's publication (the previous year has been recalculated).

Court proceedings leading to a conviction From Garda PULSE, the court date is used to mark the commencement of criminal proceedings. Court proceedings leading to a conviction do not include those cases where appeals are pending. The fact that an individual is suspected of committing an offence is not enough evidence for re-offender status to be designated; a conviction must have been secured.

Crime recording Incidents reported or which become known to members of An Garda Síochána are recorded when, on the balance of probability, a Garda determines that a criminal offence defined by law has taken place, and there is no credible evidence to the contrary. If it is subsequently determined that a criminal offence did not take place, the criminal offence recorded is invalidated and is not counted in the statistics. If a person makes a report and subsequently withdraws it by stating that the criminal act did not take place, then this too is invalidated unless there is evidence to suggest that, by reasonable probability, the offence has taken place.

For criminal offences where victim confirmation is required (e.g. assault, fraud), a criminal offence is recorded only where the victim confirms the offence or where there is evidence to suggest that by reasonable probability it occurred. Another important feature of a recorded offence is that it is based on the date reported to, or that it became known to, the Gardaí. This has major implications for some offence types. Notable amongst these are sexual offences, as it has often been the case that such incidents have been reported to An Garda Síochána many years (sometimes decades) after the event(s). Thus a sexual assault, which occurred in 1960, would be included in the statistics for 2008 if it was first reported in that year.

Crime Classification	A criminal offence is classified as a particular offence type at the initial recording of that offence. However, upon investigation, it may later become apparent that an alternative offence type should be used. In this event, the record is amended to reflect this. Re-classification on the basis of court proceedings only occurs in relation to homicide offences. A murder offence is reclassified as manslaughter when a charge of manslaughter commences or when a murder charge results in a conviction for manslaughter. It is also possible, though more rare, that an incident originally classified as manslaughter may be re-classified as murder. Also, a re-classification to a homicide offence occurs when, for example, a serious assault has been recorded and, some time later, the victim dies as a consequence of the assault.
General Counting Rules	Crime counting rules are applied to all criminal offences for the purposes of the statistics. The following are the main rules relevant to the quarterly figures:
Primary Offence Rule:	Where two or more criminal offences are disclosed in a single episode, it is the primary criminal offence that is counted. The primary offence is that offence to which the greater penalty may apply. Where offences have similar penalties, offences against the person take precedence over offences against property for the purpose of determining the primary offence.
One Offence Counts Per Victim:	One offence counts per victim involved with the exceptions of cheque/credit card fraud and burglary. Under certain circumstances, the cheque/credit card exception necessitates that a series of these offences counts as one crime where the originating bank ultimately suffers the loss. The burglary exception dictates that one burglary offence is counted where property belonging to two or more victims is stolen (or damaged) during a single burglary.
Continuous Series Involving the Same Victim and Same Offender:	A continuous series of offences against the same victim involving the same offender counts as one offence.
