Acknowledgements

I would like offer my appreciation to David Walker (Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform) and Mary Burke (National Crime Council) for all their help with this project.

I would also like to express my thanks to the staff at the Centre for Social and Educational Research, in particular to the Centre Manager, Lorna Ryan and the Centre Administrator, Lorna Gannon for their assistance and support in putting the directory together.

Finally, on behalf of the Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform and the Centre for Social and Educational Research I would like to thank all those who took time out of their very busy and demanding schedule to submit project details, suggest contacts and put together lists of projects and agencies for us to contact about this directory.

Ms. Louise Cadwell

INTRODUCTION

The Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform commissioned the Centre for Social and Educational Research, Dublin Institute of Technology, to compile an directory of crime prevention measures operating in the State.

This directory aims to provide an outline of projects, programmes and agencies that:

1. Either intend to reduce offending and/or victimisation; or
2. Carry out work that otherwise may contribute to the reduction of offending and/or victimisation.

The information contained in this publication, while offering a National overview of crime prevention activities, is by no means an exhaustive collection of projects and research material that is available in Ireland.

The information that has been gathered will be stored centrally in a database in the Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform, and it is envisaged that it will be updated at regular intervals, circulated among service providers and available to the public.

Methodology

It was agreed by the Advisory Committee¹ that a key objective of the project was that the directory be inclusive rather than exclusive of projects and that any definition would have to reflect this. For the purpose of this project, crime prevention has been defined broadly and in line with the European Council decision (2001: 3) stating that, crime prevention covers all measures that are intended to reduce or otherwise contribute to reducing crime and citizens' feeling of insecurity, both quantitatively and qualitatively, either through directly deterring criminal activities or through policies and interventions designed to reduce the potential for crime and the causes of crime. (European Council, 2001: 3)²

¹ The Advisory Committee comprised of, David Walker, Crime 1 Division, Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform, and Mary Burke, National Crime Council.

² Official Journal of the European Communities, (2001) Council Decision, of 28th May 2001 Setting up a European Crime Prevention Network, L153/1 (2001/427/JHA), 8th June 2001

Collection of the Data

Project information was collected by means of a postal questionnaire and follow up telephone calls to Government Departments, organisations, and projects. Respondents could also receive the questionnaire on request via email. Questionnaires were then returned to the Centre for Social and Educational Research via post, fax and email. Current directories/available databases³, link pages on organisations' web sites and word of mouth was used to gather details of projects.

Respondents were asked to complete the questionnaire in relation to any existing, ongoing or planned initiatives/programmes and/or research projects run or sponsored by them that may impact on crime or offending. The information gathered from the projects included, contact information, project details and details of evaluations, publications, and resource material. Respondents were also requested to contact the Centre for Social and Educational Research with contact details of any further projects of which they were aware, that should be included in the directory so that a questionnaire could be forwarded to them.

Organisation of the directory

The directory is divided into nine sections and entries are listed alphabetically within each section. Projects were organised on the basis of their aim, for example, prevention of drug use, reduction of offending behaviour, or support for families and children⁴. Each entry details contact information, project details and details of evaluations, publications and resource material. Projects entries are also listed; a) alphabetically; b) by county; and c) by source of funding.

In addition and in line with the current desire that policies, programme design and planning are informed by evidence, a collection of research studies/publications, policy papers and legislation relevant to crime prevention in the State are included. Existing evaluation reports and publications by individual projects are also included in each project description.

³ Current directories/available databases consulted include the Dublin City Development Board community database, available at http://www.dublin.ie/our_community_database.asp; the Citizen Information Database, covering all aspects of civil and social rights and entitlements in Ireland, and available at <http://www.cidb.ie/live.nsf>; and the Voluntary Sector Database, hosted by the department of Library and Information Studies, University College Dublin and available at <http://www.volsec.ie/index.php3>

How to use the directory

Projects can either be located in the relevant section, alphabetically in the project index, or by county. So for example, Awareness Finglas /Cabra (Awareness FC) is a youth drugs awareness programme, and is listed:

1. As a full entry in Section 1.1.5 Drugs/Youth/prevention;
2. Alphabetically in the project index; or
3. Under Dublin in the County index.

Core funder: Department of Health and Children

Additional funding sources: Western Health Board and DHC

Body responsible: Department of Health and Children/Western Health Board

Type of Body: Community based family project

Committee: Advisory committee

Programme focus

Primary: Alcohol use, school attendance, family support, accommodation/housing, education, anger management, drug use, parenting skills, violence, prevention, counselling and children's rights.

Secondary: Offending behaviour, youth diversion, peer education, youth justice work, mediation and employment.

Aim

The focus of the project is that the families have within themselves the ability and power to solve their own difficulties, and the project is there to help them to use these strengths. The project aims to work intensively in an early intervention and preventative manner with a number of families and children and to address any difficulties families are experiencing by supporting and strengthening the family unit.

Objectives

1. Provide intensive support to families, primarily those whose children are seen to be most at risk;
2. To provide less intensive support to families through accessing existing services;
3. To contribute to the models of good practice and pool of knowledge and resources in the provision of family support;
4. To develop partnership between families and service providers;
5. To establish collaborative structures between statutory and voluntary agencies and local community, in order to enhance a community based response; and
6. To build trust between the state agencies and families in the area and the community in general.

Methods used:

Family group conferencing, counselling, family therapy, individual/one-to-one and group work. The project uses the following approaches and models of work:

- An outreach approach with home visits at flexible times which facilitate the family, operating both during and out of office hours;
- Acting as a liaison between members of the community and any services they wish to access;
- Social network analysis, solution focused practice contract work with families, and Western Health Board Family Support Model; and
- Use of creative and innovative models of work, linked to a theoretical framework which responds to needs of children and their families.

Programme duration: Ongoing
Principal target group: Families in the Westside area experiencing difficulties and in need of assistance and/or families who have had difficulties engaging with other agencies in the past but still identify a need for support.
Who can attend: Male and female

Pavee Point Mediation Service

Initiative Established 1999

Address: Mediation Service, Pavee Point Travellers' Centre, 46 North Great Charles Street, Dublin 1, Telephone: 01 8780255, Facsimile: 01 8742626, Email: mediation@pavee.iol.ie, Homepage: www.paveepoint.ie

Core funder: Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform

Body responsible: Pavee Point Travellers' Centre

Committee: Advisory Committee, Management Committee and Co-ordinating Group

Programme focus

Primary: Mediation communication, conflict transformation

Secondary: Offending behaviour, accommodation/housing, violence, prevention, anger management, racism and crime.

Aim

To support better relations between Travellers and members of the majority population through conflict transformation initiatives and to enhance Travellers capacity to develop new ways of dealing with conflict in their lives.

Objectives

1. To develop a climate in which mediation and creative non-violent approaches are seen to be relevant to transforming conflict between Travellers and settled people;
2. To enhance relationships between Travellers and the settled population through the direct involvement in negotiation of all parties;
3. To enable Travellers to develop the skills required to use alternative techniques to resolve disputes;
4. To strengthen relationships between Travellers and state authorities, such as An Garda Síochána, local authorities, etc.
5. To help secure reasonable outcomes from the task force report (e.g. in supporting better relationships between the Traveller and the settled communities, in the provision of adequate and appropriate Traveller accommodation and in the equitable provision of services);
6. To help build local capacities by providing training and educational workshops which contribute to a greater awareness of conflict transformation options; and
7. To create an environment which enhances work already taking place with Travellers in the areas of health, community development, education, training and broad socio-economic development.

Additional information

The Mediation Service is available to people who would like to try to resolve their conflict and improve relationships through a process of mediation. Participation is voluntary. The Service offers to facilitate mediation processes primarily within the greater Dublin Area.

In attempting to address the conflictual nature of relations between Travellers and members of the majority population it is important to take into account the wider context of racism and power differentials between various groups and sectors in society. While the mediation approach recognises that everyone involved in conflict has a role to play in its resolution, it acknowledges that the playing field may not be level and that it is essential to address power imbalances in the pursuit of just solutions.

There are limits to mediation at a micro level in that inequalities at the heart of the wider social system continue to sustain conflict relations. Transformation of conflict relations between Travellers and the majority population requires structural changes also at a macro level. An integral part of the work of the Service involves building bridges with key sectors that are capable of taking a leading role in improving the relationship between Travellers and settled people in the wider society. This involves building trust and understanding. The Mediation Service engages in a variety of initiatives with a view to building relationships with An Garda Síochána, the Church, local authorities and trade unions.

Methods used:	Mediation, individual/one-to-one and mediation
Programme duration:	Ongoing
Principal target group :	The Mediation Service is available to individuals, groups and agencies from both the Traveller community and the majority population who wish to find a solution to their conflict through a process of mediation.
Who can attend:	Male and female
Age group:	Primarily adults
Application Information:	Individuals requesting mediation services can phone, write or contact the Service in person.
Referral criteria	Referrals come from a variety of sources including: individuals (Traveller and settled), Traveller organisations, other organisations and agencies (e.g. local authorities, An Garda Síochána and Health Boards)

EVALUATION

Body Responsible: Women's Aid

Type of Body: Limited Company/Voluntary Agency

Committee: Advisory Committee/Steering Committee

Programme focus

Primary: Domestic violence, victim's safety and protection.

Secondary: Gender and counselling.

Aim

The aim of the programme is to increase the safety of victims of domestic violence and reduce the recidivism rate of domestic violence.

Objectives

1. To ensure that all actions increase victim safety at all times and in all interventions;
2. To protect the victim by bringing the perpetrator into the judicial system through reducing the screening out of cases and by offering a graded level of sanctions to the perpetrator including a perpetrator intervention programme which will report to the court regularly;
3. To increase the information available to the courts by tracking cases through the civil and criminal justice system and by gathering and co-ordinating interagency information flow;
4. To protect the victim by providing access to support services, safe housing, legal advocacy and education;
5. To evaluate the impact of the programme from the standpoint of the safety of victims and domestic violence.

Additional Information

The National Domestic Violence Intervention Programme (NDVIP) is an integrated approach to domestic violence, co-ordinating the work of the civil and criminal judicial systems, perpetrators programmes, support programmes and other key agencies (i.e. Probation and Welfare, Gardaí, locally based groups and agencies). The project aims to increase the protection available to victims of violence in intimate relationships. It also evaluates the work of the legal system in protecting victims of domestic violence and offers support to the victim who is trying to access protection. The project also aims to set up and provide a re-education programme for perpetrators linked to the legal system and work towards introducing graded sanctions for re-offending behaviour.

Methods used: Group work and individual support to victims of domestic violence

Programme duration: The pilot programme will run for 3 years in 3 locations (Dublin, Dundalk and Clare)

Who can attend: Male and female

Application information: Victims of domestic violence are supported on request and perpetrators will be mandated to attend through the courts.

EVALUATION

The NDVIP had a feasibility study carried out prior to commencement and the programme will be evaluated during the pilot period to assess the impact that it is having on victim safety and perpetrator recidivism.

Objectives

1. Provide the probation service with an alternative programme for their clients;
2. Improve the clients self esteem and self confidence;
3. Provide the skills to enable the trainee to find employment; and
4. Encourage trainees to continue in further adult education programmes

Additional Information:

Over the years the project has developed programmes to meet the requirements of trainees. This has been brought about by continuous discussion with local employees informing them of the training provided by the centre and focusing on the training needs identified by them. The centre has been instrumental in promoting community spirit and has resulted in a service of cohesion and co-operation which has been gained through working on a team to deal with local problems at a local level. It is vital that each trainee receives the skill training and self-confidence to compete for that first important foot hold in the jobs market.

Secondary: Employment, counselling, gangs, prevention, mediation and family support.

Aim

Direct young people from conflict with the law provide a safe environment and encourage young people to take an interest in their community forging positive links between community workers and the project.

Objectives

1. Identify and work with young people 'at risk' of being in trouble with the law;
2. Provide young people with skills and alternative ways to spend their time; and
3. Foster positive relationships between young people, local residents, community groups etc.

Additional Information:

YAB was set up during October 2000 and has engaged 52 young people with the project during that period. The project targets 12-18 year olds 'at risk' of being included in the Garda Juvenile Diversion Programme and schools that require a response to inappropriate behaviour or assistance with introducing diversionary methods. The project also receives referrals from parents and in addition to this most referrals can bring along a (safe) friend to the project activities. Activities include a variety of pursuits indoor/outdoor and the introduction of interesting new hobbies such as astronomy, hiking, geology and local history and folklore. The above activities allow valued youth work engagement with participants and create a strong bond with the project staff and young people.

Methods used: Group work, individual one-to-one, set programmes ('Copping On', 'Walk Tall')

Programme duration: Annual programme during school terms

Principal target group: Those on the Garda Juvenile Diversion Programme, schools and parents

Who can attend: Male and female

Gender breakdown: Male: 40, female: 60

Age group: 12 - 18 years

Core capacity: 26 participants

Application information: Formal application process and informal procedures

Referral criteria: Young people are referred from the J.L.O, and schools through the J.L.O and the Home School Liaison Officer

EVALUATION

An annual and half yearly report available from the project.

Guidance Enhancement Initiative

Initiative Established 2001

Address: Guidance Enhancement Initiative, Guidance Inspector, Department of Education and Science, Marlborough Street, Dublin 1. Telephone: 01-8734700, Email: caitlin.nibhreonoin@education.gov.ie
Homepage: www.ncge.ie/www.education.gov.ie

Core funder: Department of Education and Science

Body responsible: Department of Education and Science/Post Primary Schools

Type of body: Statutory

Committee: Advisory Committee

Programme focus

Primary: School attendance, education and counselling.

Secondary: Employment.

Aim

To support and develop guidance practice in all areas of education

Objectives

1. To enhance the provision of educational guidance;
2. To target an increase in the take up of science subjects; and
3. To increase business and community links in disadvantaged areas.

Additional Information

In February 2001, the Minister for Education and Science, Dr. Michael Woods T.D., announced the provision of 50 whole time equivalent posts for guidance to commence in the school year 2001-2002. Unlike previous allocation of guidance posts, schools would be invited to propose innovative actions to enhance guidance for students. The new posts were allocated on the basis of an objective assessment of these proposals. Priority was given to schools putting forward proposals to develop and strengthen formal links between themselves and business, especially schools located in areas of structural unemployment, both urban and rural, schools in disadvantaged areas and schools promoting the take-up of science subjects at senior cycle through establishing links with employers.

Previous projects include:

- The Community Based Guidance Assistance (Leonardo da Vinci funded pilot project) provided training for 'significant adults' in the community in non-formal guidance skills. It continues to run in Cork (Mary Lenihan Cork City Partnership) with the funding from the Department of Health and Children as part of the Drugs Prevention Strategy; and
- 'Youthstart' which provided training for 'Youthreach' staff in non-formal guidance skills;

Methods used: Counselling, individual one-to-one, group work, and building networks with business and community organisations.

Programme duration: Three years during school terms

Principal target group: Young people in post-primary school

Application information: Guidance hours are allocated on the basis of proposals from post-primary schools.

EVALUATION

Evaluation is carried out by way of monitoring visits by the Guidance Inspectorate.

Youthreach Galway City

Initiative Established 1986

Address: Piscatory School, Claddagh Quay, Galway City, Facsimile: 091 589085, Email: ashley.whelan@cdvec.ie, Homepage: www.cgvec.ie

Core funder: Department of Education and Science
Body responsible: City of Galway VEC/Youthreach Galway
Type of Body: Statutory
Committee: Management Committee

Programme focus

Primary: Education and school attendance.

Secondary: employment, counselling, crime, exchange, violence, parenting skills, drug use, youth work, suicide prevention, peer education, anger management, youth diversion, family support, offending behaviour and alcohol use.

Additional focus: Individual, personal, and social behaviours and choices that participants make, i.e. how actions have consequences.

Aim

The aim is to be a participant focused needs based centre towards continuity education.

Additional information

The project feels that 'one off' programmes do not work in relation to crime prevention and takes an integrated approach where issues are addressed in all subject areas. It promotes the concept of 'choice theory' and focuses the individual on the choices he/she makes and the consequences of having made them. The focus is on internal control as opposed to external control which allows the individual to 'blame' others for what they have in reality chosen to do.

Methods used:	Group work, individual/one-to-one, and set programmes (NCVA, Personal effectiveness/personal and interpersonal skills, 'Copping On'/peer education)
Programme duration:	46 weeks per annum
Principal target group:	Early school leavers aged 15-20 years
Who can attend:	Male and female
Gender breakdown:	Male: 80%, female 20%
Age group:	15-20 years
Core capacity:	25 participants
Application	Informal interview
Referral criteria	Interest, motivation, commitment
